The Blaimore caterpillar plow was on the job for a while yesterday, clearing some of the back streets that had become somewhat blocked by drifts.

"Emperor Selassie's ambition is to wear a blue serge suit," comments an exchange. Well, isn't there one available since the big "umpire" over there switched to the straitjacket?

The annual meetings of the ratepayers of the Town of Blaimore and Blaimore School District 628, called to be held at the central school house on Friday night, transferred to the Community hall, as it was found the schoolroom was not near large enough to accommodate the crowd of interested ratepayers. At that, the hall was none too large. The session lasted till after midnight, when adjournment was made to Saturday night, which meeting also was largely attended. Reports of the auditor, the mayor and various committees were submitted, and after lengthy discussion all were approved.

ACCLAMATIONS IN BLAIRMORE

Quite unexpectedly, Blaimore experienced 100 per cent acclamations on Monday.

Three vacancies to fill on the council and two on the board of school trustees gave the impression that opposition slates would be introduced to provide a contest. It was different, however, for all factions agreed on the final slate drafted and agreed on acclamations as follows: for council, H. Zak, merchant; W. L. Evans, merchant, and E. Womersley, miner. For trustees, S. G. Bannan, solicitor, and J. Krkosky, junior, miner and secretary of the Blaimore Unit of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada.

Mr. Krkosky had just completed a three-year term on the board.

At Coleman, George Pattinson was re-elected mayor by acclamation, but elections will be held Monday next to fill vacancies on the council. Among those nominated are: A. F. Antrobus, W. Hayson, Frank Serak, James Allan and J. S. D'Appolonia.

G. Hope, R. W. Greenhalgh and James Naylor were elected by acclamation to the school board.

RUDYARD KIPLING

AND THE SCOUTS

In the death of Rudyard Kipling the Boy Scouts lost not only a strong supporter and friend, but one who had contributed very importantly to the founding of the junior branch of the movement, the Wolf Cubs. When seeking a foundation plan for the projected junior Scouts, Baden-Powell found it in Kipling's "Jungle Books,"—in the story of Mowgli, the boy-wolf cub, and the laws of the jungle animals. This was the origin of the Wolf Cub promise, "The Cub gives in to the Old Wolf; the Cub does not give in to himself." The first Wolf Cub Handbook was dedicated by the Chief Scout to Mr. Kipling, and at large Scout gatherings the great writer always showed particular interest in the doings of the "Cubs." He was a member of the Scout Council from 1923 to the time of his death.

The remains of Mrs. O. M. Olson were laid to rest in the Union cemetery on Saturday afternoon, following a service in the Community hall, in which Dominic Campo, Pat Lennihan and Mrs. J. North took part. The Internationale was sung at the graveside.

JAMES CARDLE PASSES

James Cardle, well known mining man, passed away suddenly at Bellevue on Saturday afternoon, following but a few days' illness.

Mr. Cardle for a number of years managed the operation of the Mohawk Bituminous Mines at Maple Leaf, retiring but two or three years ago. He was of Irish birth and came to Canada about thirty years ago. After spending six years in Nova Scotia, he moved west to Bellevue, Alberta, where he has since resided. He was 53 years of age, and is survived by his wife (formerly Miss Bosely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bosely, of Bellevue), and seven children.

The remains were laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery at Bellevue on Tuesday forenoon, following funeral mass in St. Cyril's church.

DEATH OF MRS. CLARA BIRD

Mrs. Clara Bird, 65 years of age, passed away in Calgary Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. Benzie, 109 twenty-fourth avenue southeast, following a lengthy illness.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Benzie, the late Mrs. Bird is survived by one son, William, sales agent for the West Canadian Collieries, residing at Winnipeg, and two grandchildren, Patsy and Margaret, of Winnipeg.

Born at Bilton, Staffordshire, England, deceased came to Canada in 1906, taking up residence at Fernie, B.C., from where she moved to Calgary fifteen years later, and where she has since resided. Her husband predeceased her about nineteen years ago, a victim of a mine disaster at Coal Creek, B.C.

Funeral services were held yesterday in Calgary, with interment in Burnside cemetery.

Fred Gavelin has returned from Calgary, where he has been undergoing treatments for a leg injury for several months.

The Hillcrest junior baseball club has placed their order for posters advertising a grand dance to be held at Hillcrest on Easter Monday.

Rev. Dean Harrington was a patient in the Holy Cross hospital at Calgary for a few days this week, returning home Wednesday night.

A dance, under the auspices of the Crow's Nest Pass Flying Club will be staged in the Columbus hall on the night of St. Valentine's, Friday, February 14th. See bills for further particulars.

On the next visit of the British battleship Renown to Burmis, arrangements will be made for her to blow down the balance of Turtle Mountain—just to let the little sun shine into Blaimore earlier on winter mornings.

The skipper of a tramp steamer, in writing up his log recording an eventful day, rounded off his task with the entry: "Mate intoxicated." On the following day it was the mate's duty to write up the log, and he completed his account with: "Skipper sober."

A bunch of cards were sent to Edmonton last week for the use and convenience of the government. They were printed: "We have to advise that your services are no longer required, and that another man has sought and been offered your job."

When police raided a gambling joint in a British Columbia town recently, they found among those present two Welshmen, an Englishman, three Swedes, a Pole, an Irishman and a Scotchman. Scotty could not be charged as being a part owner of the money on the table.

Has had considerable experience as adjudicator in eastern and western Canada.

LLOYD — KOVACH

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's United church, Coleman, on Saturday last, when Miss Margaret Claire Kovach, daughter of Mr. August Kovach, of Pasburg, became the bride of John Lloyd, of Coleman, formerly of Blaimore, Rev. Roy C. Taylor officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Attendants for the bride and groom were Miss Helvie Hedburg and Mr. Arthur Dufield. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd will reside in Coleman.

The Lethbridge Herald remarks: Coleman appears to have a hockey team.

SCHOOL BILL IS SWAMPED BY TRUSTEES

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 4.—With less than half a dozen dissenting votes out of an assembly that packed Central United church, the Alberta School Trustees' Association voted non-support of Premier William Aberhart's scheme for larger school units, Tuesday morning.

The vote was as decisive as the association's rejection of the Baker bill in former years. The motion, which the convention voted down overwhelmingly, was as follows: "Resolved that we fully endorse the proposal made by the Honorable William Aberhart, minister of education, to establish 43 or 45 school districts in the province to replace the 3,325 that now exist." Over 700 delegates were present.

The convention only reached a vote on the resolution in the last minutes of the session, more than an hour being taken up by a snarl of technicalities, amendments, questions of order and other points of procedure.

It was first moved that the resolution be referred to the rural section only. Upon deciding on this procedure, town and village delegates protested. The motion was then rescinded and the original motion placed before the whole house. The motion itself was a substitute for three others, one supporting the Aberhart scheme, one condemning it, and one asking deferment for one year.

Not one delegate supported the scheme in its entirety, though a few were willing to accept it in part. The great majority, however, would have nothing to do with it.

"Mr. Aberhart evaded every question we asked him last night," one delegate charged.

The statement brought rounds of applause.

"After hearing his explanations last night, I, for one, don't trust him," said a second delegate.

Applause greeted this remark also.

An attempt was made to adjourn the debate, but the motion was defeated. Then, when about 10 delegates had been heard briefly, nearly all being in opposition to the plan, the vote was taken. Its result brought most of the delegates to their feet cheering.

A progress report from the committee on rural education was presented by Professor A. E. Ottewill.

"THE KING IS DEAD"

● Though crowns are trampled in the dust,
Britannia keeps her ancient trust,
Secure beneath our Royal head.
She mourns today,
Her King is dead.

● The King is dead, let Edward reign
O'er his late father's wide domain.
From London towers the trumpets ring!

"The King is dead,"
"Long Live the King!"

● Thus Britain keeps, on land and sea,
Her sons forever loyal, free
From despots' rule and tyrant's chains.

King George is dead—
King Edward reigns.

of Edmonton. He suggested co-operation for the new curriculum now being tried in some of the provincial schools, advising at the same time that close observation be kept. He promised that a plan for improvement of administration of school districts would be placed before the delegates later in convention. This plan, it was understood, would be in the nature of substitute for certain phases of the Aberhart scheme.

The secretary-treasurer's report, submitted by Mrs. A. H. Rogers, of Fort Saskatchewan, showed the finances to be in good shape and circulation of the trustees' magazine increasing slowly but steadily.

Procurring advertisements is a wonderful opportunity to forever kill your inferiority complex. When you are quite green (and look the part), you are ushered into the very sanctus sanctorum of the advertising manager, and, after a great deal of stuttering, you finally manage to splutter forth your originally well-memorized sales talk, and kindly, although quite decidedly, are conducted out with a polite "No."

On the other hand, however, after a week of your advertising campaign has sizzled by, then your meins and sales talk are at their height of effectiveness. The head man of each firm realizes that you are out to procure his advertisement with the least possible time and sales talk. Consequently your business attitude has impressed him and the contract is signed!

HINTS ON SOLICITING ADVERTISING

Types of Victims

1. Gruff type.—This type of victim should be handled with diplomacy.
2. Serious type.—Omit all stock jokes when speaking to this person.
3. Hearty blustering type.—Jolly him along to a large advertisement.
4. Pleasant type.—Plan upon this type of person's sympathies in regard to the difficulty of procuring advertisers.
5. Unpleasant type.—Retire from this person's presence as quickly and gracefully as possible.
6. "For Alma Mater" type.—Turn on all your advertising personality and power on this person to procure an advertisement.

The last spark of life fled from the big Neon sign here last week. All that's left now are the inscriptions.

B.C. exchange last week remarked that "a large element of the business people of Blaimore are said to be sick and tired of the high-handed tactics of the red element." Well, no one here has noticed it, for the simple reason that those same business people are too darned scared to express themselves.

IN MEMORIAM

THE KING IS DEAD

Great Britain stunned in silence stands,
All eyes are dim, all heads are bare.
What is the awesome thing that's said,
Momentous news by millions read,
Swift flashing to all Empire lands,
Swift moving through the mourning air.
"The King! Our Gracious King is dead."

He loved his people—last and least!
Expansive Empire, brilliant Throne!
As Lover bears he bore our grief,
Our dangers shared, and brought relief
To North and South, the West and East:
His loyal people grieved, bemoan
His passing to the Great Unknown.

Love watched with anguish soul before
His guarded death-sealed Palace door:
Frail love would stay the spirit's flight
To Empire of the saints in light;
Prevent his Great Adventure where—
"Yond death's dread menace, grim despair—
God's angels wait with laurel wreath:
His passing from loved heart and health:
His advent to the sapphire shore.
To welcome, and to crown him there.

Beloved, he donned Imperial Crown,
And graced Britannia's brilliant Throne;
He loved through long, eventful reign,
Life task achieved without a stain;
Beloved! He laid his Kingship down
Without regret, or mournful moan:
His Royal life an Empire's gain.

Long live the King! He, angel led,
Passed from his loved old England shore,
God's starred immense to range—explore;
The mortal—he immortal—shed,
Left mortal form for us to bed;
Life strain, earth storm, world strife, all o'er,
Within God's House for evermore
He lives! Say not, "The King is Dead."

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headache is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY — LAWRENCE A. KEATINGE

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, was really opposed to it, and had forced Soak, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew, to be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier statement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Hamilton's plan was concerned was only a new-fangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread." Buzz shoots at him in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, who is present, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unharmed. Buzz is arrested. The doctor attends Townsend and dresses his wound. Kilgo Roper suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare open hostility to Fleming.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo and Helen at his place. Kilgo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal for his men to shoot at him, and Link is shot at from outside the house.

Link kills Kilgo out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years' imprisonment for shooting Bud Townsend.

On his way home after the trial of Buzz was over, Link meets Soak Torney, who starts telling Fleming why he withdrew his approval of the water scheme. Just as he was about to tell the name of the man who had forced him to do so, Torney is shot and killed by a rifle bullet. Link hunts around to find the killer, but finds nothing. He comes across Jackpot Mell watering his horse, and Jackpot warns Fleming that if he wished to live he had better leave the district.

(Now Go On With The Story)

He gave up the search. "I'm obliged about the land. It's going to be worth a good deal more than you and Kilgo thought. Jackpot," he went on slowly, his brown eyes travelling over the man's light figure, "you could have killed Torney, and you wouldn't have turned a hair doing it. I have a hunch somebody made him talk like he did at the meeting. In fact, Soak told me so. Well," he ended, turning away, "I've got to money."

Mell's sallow countenance wore its accustomed look of masked derision but there was a brittle edge to his tone. "Link, you ought to quit these parts. Runnin' a place in town like mine, a man overdoes things."

"I see. Just a friendly tip, eh?" "Shore! We always got on good enough, but I'm not the kind to keep much to my friends. Seems like I can't remember who I heard talkin' like that, then, while I was here."

"I've been lots of different places in my time. Found out it's mighty good sense to get elsewhere where trouble busts out."

"I never did out any baggage, Jackpot," was the drawling reply. "By the way, when you get to town tell the sheriff there's a corpse here for him to see."

Mell shrugged, then strode to his horse and mounted. He did not so much as glance back, but urged his horse along the spring bed in the direction of the road. Link followed afoot, watching until the man disappeared toward Rawhide.

He searched another half hour for tracks or some clue to the identity of Soak's killer. There was none. Hearing hoof-beats, he stepped out of the trees onto the road. To his surprise it was Honest John Mulrooney he saw, and Marty Bush, instead of the sheriff.

They pulled up. "Who's lyin' there?" "Soak Torney. He and I were talking and somebody shot him. I haven't found out yet who did it."

Bush dismounted. "Do you know who?" He nodded. "Torney hasn't been seen since the meeting, you know. He stepped out of the trees and stopped me. Started to say who scared him into going against the irrigation scheme at last night. Soak was all for it before, but somebody scared him into talkin' like he did. It looks kind of queer."

He broke off as Sheriff Stephens and the shorter, pudgier figure of Governor Elmer Spragg rounded the bend, seated in a buckboard. They drew up and climbed out. Ames went at once to the man who lay on his side in the road. He turned his head, stood up eyeing Fleming, his eyes fixed on him.

"I'm s'prised y've hangin' around, Link. After killin' a man most guys light out."

Astonishment swept over the Star Loop's owner's face. He stared openly at Stephens, then looked with puzzled uncertainty at Bush and Mulrooney. "You mean," he demanded at last, incredulously, "you think I killed Soak?"

The other grunted. "We got word you did. Where's the last? Had plenty of time to get rid of it, of course."

Spraggins nodded to this. The cattle agent and Mulrooney looked startled as they drew nearer. "Sheriff, if Mell told you I killed Torney, he lies!"

Stephens jerked at his straggly grey mustache. "Oh, Jackpot's a smooth liar, all right. But I reckoned you'd say that. Self-defense, wasn't it?" "I didn't shoot him. The sheriff stepped out of the trees as I rode along. He started to tell me who made him back down on the irrigation scheme at the meeting the other day. When he got it right, he was shot. I went after the fellow, but found Mell watering his horse at the spring. He claimed he didn't do it—and I couldn't find a rifle on him or anywhere around."

"Do you think I'd hang around here, waiting for you if I killed Soak? If it was self-defense, I'd ride for you myself. If it was murder, I'd be miles away by now."

Silence fell. "That's yore story, eh?" Ames reached out of his hip pocket and drew out a pair of manacles. "First I'll take that skunk, Fleming. Yore yarn sounds weak to me. Had plenty cause to want Soak dead, didn't yuh? So yuh could maybe talk ranchers into the waterin' scheme? So long as he was around, the main authority on it, yuh couldn't make much headway. I'll have to take yuh in, Link."

Impulse assailed him to whip out his weapon, hold the sheriff at bay until he could make a swift escape. But he stifled this. It would brand him with the appearance of guilt. He was wholly innocent: the proper thing to do was to insist on that.

Stephens was stretching out his hands with the manacles when John Mulrooney uttered a dry chuckle and stepped close. "Why no, Link, I killed Torney, Sheriff."

"Jackpot Mell. Claims he hadda gift for dear life or he'd have got it too. Says he met Soak, who told him Link kept him prisoner, but he got away. Jackpot didn't follow till Link shot that he followed 'em here."

The cattlemen grinned and shook his head. "Ever hear of Mell runnin' from a gunfight?" "H'm. No, never did."

"Guess Jackpot keeps too late hours," Mulrooney drawled. "Works on a man's brain like the tremena. Why, this killin' could have happened that way. Ames—Not without Marty and me knowin'." We been with Link the last hour."

The lawman stiffened, uttering an exclamation. Even the unemotional Spraggins blinked and slowly shifted his gaze to Bush.

"Been with him an hour?" "Have we, Marty, or not?"

The cattle agent struck a match on his boot sole. "Of course." Fortunately Stephens was not looking at Link at the moment, so that he had time to master the amazement that rippled over his tanned face. When Ames scowled back his expression was calm, uninformative.

"Huh! You claim that too?" "Might as well, Sheriff. It gets me out of a jam, doesn't it?"

A piercing look was the answer. "Come on, Ames, forget this. It was just a little joke on Mell's part, I reckon," Marty urged. "Why, Fleming isn't a killer! And like he said, it's unreasonable to suppose that if he did shoot Torney, he would wait around an hour for you to come."

Stephens removed his hat and scratched his head. "All right," he decided with irritated reluctance. "You can go, Link. But dang it, I'm goin' to look into this plumb thorough! Willin' to swear you didn't have a rifle along to-day?"

"I am."

"And you don't know how Torney got killed?"

"Haven't any idea as to the killer—no."

"I'm a bit satisfied, by a dumb sight. Might hear from me later."

Relieved, but trying to keep his betrayal of that fact from his face, Fleming sought his horse. A moment later he rode off with Bush and Mulrooney. When they were out of earshot, he faced them.

"Well, what made you do it? Do you know who shot Soak from ambush?"

"Course not! But look here, Link: who did it?"

"Haven't any idea, Marty. Don't even know why Jackpot should want me. Why should he try to put me away like Buzz, and maybe for a longer time?"

Honest John looked troubled. "Yore too believin' in folks. Why, any dog with a sore foot can tell when it's hard walkin'." Guess you can't, though. Uh—Marty and I figured yuh ain't a killer, so we led to Ames. Ain't sorry, neither. But I'm heastated."

"Speak up, John. Both of you have something on your minds. I can see that plain enough."

They exchanged looks. "Yeah. You know that promise I made in meetin', to go along with yuh on this irrigation?"

"Sure. Bush spoke up too. I'm mighty glad you aren't scared of the plan, like all the rest of these old-fashioned cow prodders. Why, there never would be progress if every one—"

"Wait, will yuh?" Mulrooney shifted uncomfortably in his saddle and stared into the distance. "That's what I'm getting at. Yuh see, my old woman's been sick a long time. And I had trouble with my steers when that stuff went all wrong with what with one thing and another, I'm hard up. Mind if I pull out of yore scheme?"

"Me too—if you don't mind, Link," Bush put in.

Silence. "I understand, boys," he said quietly. "You backed me in the meeting just for effect. For friendship's sake. Like you lied to Sheriff Stephens, because you didn't want to see me in trouble. That it?"

"Well..." "You feel like the others, that irrigation is some crazy modern scheme for wasting money. I'm grateful for your backing," he said sincerely as he strove to control his disappointment. "I surely am. You did me a good turn both times."

"Aw, Link, you oughtn't to go into this water scheme. Why, everybody thinks yuh're plumb loco!" They neared the fork in the road where Bush and Mulrooney would turn off. The mullen sky was going a deeper grey, yielding slowly to night. The wind had sharpened to a brittle keenness and snow continued to fall in a steady, melancholy swirl. The Star Loop owner stopped his horse.

"I believe in it, boys." Bush expelled tobacco juice. "Buzz scolded, though. If Helen goes in with yuh like I hear y've persuaded her to, folks'll say you had Buzz put away so she could manage their spread."

Link looked sharply at the cattle agent. "Folks would gossip about sunshine if there was nothin' but that. That wouldn't concern me. We wouldn't have anything with this thing. I'm set on it, sure it will work."

They shook their heads. "There'll be opposition, Link. Like this Soak Torney affair. And that shootin' the other night. Was Kilgo out on a friendly call or what?"

Fleming smiled. "Not exactly. Do you suspect anyone?"

Remembered By Veterans Kindly Aid By Former Prince To Men In Hospital

Our new king will be remembered by the veterans who he visited at Christie Street Hospital as long as they live. He was then the charming young Prince of Wales. His words of sympathy to those in wheelchairs and in beds, his friendly marked probably the most touching incident that occurred during his visit to Canada in 1919.

Completely overcome by emotion as he looked along the rows of crippled veterans, the boyish Prince finally found words to voice his feelings.

"I do not know how to tell you how sorry I am for your present condition. I cannot find words to express my thanks and to express the gratitude we all owe to you. But I shall tell my father, the King, what I have seen here to-day, and I wish each one of you the best there can be for the years that lie ahead of you."

And then with streaming eyes the Prince stepped off the chair from which he had spoken, tightly clenching his gloves. Going down each row of crippled soldiers, he spoke in each, patting the shoulder, touching the hand or the head of each one present. It wasn't on the program as scheduled. It was just another kindly, kindly act by the Prince with the understanding that And this man is to-day our revered Sovereign.

Line For British Throne As It Now Stands

The sons of the Sovereign and their children are in the order of succession to the British throne, and after the young prince, the daughters in order of their own seniority. With the accession to the throne of the Prince of Wales, the eldest son of the late beloved king, the order therefore stands as follows:

The Duke of York.
The Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke of York.
The Princess Margaret, second daughter of the Duke of York.
The Duke of Gloucester.
The Duke of Kent.
The Prince Edward George, son of the Duke of Kent.
The Princess Royal (Princess May) wife of Earl of Harewood.
The Viscount, Lascelles.
The Hon. Gerald Lascelles.

Death On The Road Seeing Victims Of Accidents Should Stop Reckless Driving

A few months ago an article in the Literary Digest described in all their horrors the injuries suffered by people killed or maimed in automobile accidents. The purpose of the article was to instill in the minds of those who read them such a nausea that they would be impressed with the idea of exercising care at all times and prevent such things happening to themselves and to others. Since then, several newspapers in the United States have followed that plan instead of simply saying that So-and-so was killed and So-and-so badly hurt. Whether it has done any good or not we cannot say.

An inquest was held at London, Ont., the other day on two men who were killed while motoring to Lucan. Three other occupants, all young people, were terribly injured. The car must have been travelling at a terrific speed for the evidence showed that it skidded at an 8 curve for 297 feet, almost 100 yards, crashed into a culvert and knocked out a piece weighing 9,000 pounds, throwing the concrete 19 feet, and the car then hurtled through the air a distance of 49 feet. The automobile was reduced to splinters and one of the injured men was impaled on a piece of metal and hung as if on a butcher's hook.

This is a terrible story, and a terrible indictment of the fool driver at the wheel. He was one of the killed. The other man who was killed could have died from any one of five injuries.

The suggestion was made at the London inquest that motorists should see the injured in hospital and the dead in the morgues. One look at the victims of either of these accidents, we are sure, would make any driver speed off speeding and reckless driving forever. It is not fair to surgeons to make them tackle such ghastly cases and attempt to make people whole again. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Experiment With Cotton Italy Sows Large Land Tracts For Cotton Growing

While Italian scientists are exploring new fields of chemistry in the hope of discovering synthetic textiles, agriculturists are striving to develop domestic cotton growing. Mussolini has willed it, and the Italians have learned to attempt the impossible when it Duces speaks.

Five thousand acres were set apart for the purpose in the colonial gardens of Palermo, using high-grade seeds imported from the United States. Results of these experiments, it was claimed at the time, were satisfactory.

Officials of the Italian Cotton Institute—a government body with absolute control over cotton in Italy—declare that with the plantings in Sicily, Sardinia and Matera, Italy's 1935-cotton crop will furnish one-fourth the cotton formerly imported. That is to say, an estimated crop of 250,000 bales.

The Order Of Succession Line For British Throne As It Now Stands

The sons of the Sovereign and their children are in the order of succession to the British throne, and after the young prince, the daughters in order of their own seniority. With the accession to the throne of the Prince of Wales, the eldest son of the late beloved king, the order therefore stands as follows:

The Duke of York.
The Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke of York.
The Princess Margaret, second daughter of the Duke of York.
The Duke of Gloucester.
The Duke of Kent.
The Prince Edward George, son of the Duke of Kent.
The Princess Royal (Princess May) wife of Earl of Harewood.
The Viscount, Lascelles.
The Hon. Gerald Lascelles.

Are You Tired—Listless?

If your rest breaks at night? If your kidneys need attention take G.A. Pills. They will strengthen your kidneys and if you sleep better they will feel better and longer.

There's nothing like a child's cold to upset a young mother. And nothing so vexing as colds and coughs, and whooping cough, and influenza, and all the other ailments that come from a cold.

VapoRub. It is effective—external—and safe. It avoids the risks of constant "dosing" so often given to children's delicate dignities.

Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts fast ways at once:

1. By a poultice or plaster, the skin, by initiation of its penetrating vapors, is soothed and the body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages. Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases the chest—helps break congestion.

Little Helps For This Week

If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9:23.

So nigh is grandeur to our dust, So near is God to man, When duty whispers low, Thou must, The youth replies, I can. — R. W. Emerson.

"Know that 'impossible' where truth and mercy, and the everlasting voice of nature order, has no place in the brave man's dictionary. That when all men have said it is impossible and have gone elsewhere and you are left alone, then your time and opportunity have come. It is for you to do now, ask no counsel from anyone but God, and it will be possible for you to write on the eternal scroll a record of heroic life."

In the moral world there is nothing impossible if we bring a thorough will to it. Man can do everything with himself; but he must not attempt too much with others.

A Cherished Possession

The prayer book used by the late King George V. at the funeral service in St. George's chapel, Windsor Castle, for his father, King Edward VII., is the cherished possession of G. H. Bowyer of Calgary. It is bound in royal purple. Mr. Bowyer was a chorister at the funeral services for both King Edward VII. and Queen Victoria.

Limits To His Power

All-powerful though he is, the Emperor of Japan doesn't even enjoy the prerogative of naming his own offspring. Court scholars, steeped in history and religion, cook up the tag for a new-born royal child, inscribe the chosen moniker on white paper and then put it in to the Mikado, who has to take it and like it.

Sir Ralph Harwood, recently appointed financial secretary to the King, was named the telegrapher in the British post office.

WOE IS MAN!

Man is of few days and full of trouble.

He laboreth all the days of his youth to pay for a gasoline chariot and when at last the task is finished, lo! the thing is junk and he needeth another.

He planneth grain in the earth and tilleth diligently the soil, he and his servants and his asses, and when the harvest is gathered into the barns he oweth the landlord eight dollars and forty cents more than the crop is worth.

He borroweth money from the lenders to buy corn and syrup and gasoline and the interest eateth up all that he hath.

He begests sons and educateth them to smoke cigarettes and wear white collars, and lo! they have soft hands and neither labor in the fields or anywhere under the sun.

The children of his loins are ornerly and one of them becometh a lawyer, and one sticketh up a filling station and maketh whoopee with the proceeds thereof.

He goeth forth in the morning on the road and a jitney smiteth him so that his ribs project through his epidermis.

He drinketh a drink of whoopee juice to forget his sorrows and it burneth the lining of his liver.

All the days of his life he findeth no parking place and is tormented by traffic cops from going forth until he cometh back.

An enemy stealeth his car; physicians remove his inner parts and his teeth and his bankroll; his arteries hardeneth in the evening and his heart bursteth trying to keep peace.

Sorrow and bills followeth him all the days of his life, and when he is gathered to his fathers the neighbors say: "How much did he leave?"

Lo! he has left it all, and his widow rejoiceth in a new couple and maketh eyes at a young sheik that slicketh his hair and playeth a nifty game of bridge.

Woe is man! From the day of his birth to the time when the earth knoweth him no more he laboreth for bread and catcheth the devil.

His name is in the beginner and dust he is mud—Ex.

Remember the dance to be held in Blairmore on Friday night next, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the B.E.S.L.

After having his leg pulled at the ratpayers' meeting on Friday night, His Worship Mayor Bill Knight claims he is at least four inches taller. But he's slightly lopsided, and needs a pull on the other one.

A Welshman, who but recently came across the Pond and took up residence in Lethbridge, heard a traveller in that city refer to golf being played all winter in Blairmore. He came up on Wednesday night's train, bringing with him his complete outfit, including the plusfours and the caddie. He found the temperature here hovering around the 42-below-zero mark, and that the only golf played here at this time was what is known as "indoor golf," the rules of which are obtainable at The Enterprise office.

THE PASS EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO
(Blairmore Enterprise, 1917)

Aug. 17.—Chautauqua concluded a successful week's programme here on Friday night.

Reports from the South Fork country disclose that some one or more individuals have been making a practice of dynamiting that stream and its tributaries.

J. L. Parker, of the Lee Lake Ranch, has taken over the big copper mine at Elko, B.C., in which the following are also interested: P. Burns, Calgary; A. E. Cross, Calgary; J. W. Davidson, Calgary; Lieut-Governor R. G. Brett, Edmonton; Major Harold Daly, Ottawa; Dr. Galbraith, Lethbridge, and George Kelloway, Calgary. The ore runs six to seven per cent copper, and shipments of up to 1200 tons per month are anticipated.

Dr. A. DeMartigny, M.D.C.M., of Frank, has decided to take over a practice at Pincher Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson have received word that their two sons, George and Robert, had crossed over to France. They now have five stalwart boys in the firing line.

Born, on Thursday afternoon, to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, of Frank, a son. Born, at Bellevue, to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Coupland, a son.

Miss Rooft has accepted a position on the Blairmore teaching staff.

The death of John Stafford, father of Mrs. Albert J. Olson, of Blairmore, occurred at Lethbridge on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruthven MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Herbsman and Misses Crites and Briggs, were guests of Messrs. J. Charbonnier and J. R. Smith and party to an auto trip to Waterton Lakes on Sunday.

Aug. 24.—Mrs. D. Kemp received word from Ottawa on Thursday, stating that her husband had entered hospital in France, suffering from gunshot wounds in the abdomen. He was one of the first volunteers from Blairmore, and went overseas with the first Canadian Engineers from Winnipeg.

This week, Ethel Williams paraded into town in broad daylight, leaving all her clothes at home.

At the home of Mrs. Gibson at Frank last night, the sixteenth birthday anniversary of her daughter Gladys was celebrated.

The mechanical staff of the Franco-Canadian Collieries Co. waited upon Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hilton at Frank on Saturday night, presenting them with a beautiful gold emblematic ring and cut-glass, respectively. Mr. Hilton has resigned his position as engineer with the company, to accept a similar position at Blairmore.

Born, at Cowley, to Mr. and Mrs. W. Willoughby, a son.

The founder of hell is dead.

A large bull trout was caught by a little Sparrow near The Gap on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McVey left Sunday on a week's auto holiday trip to Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and other points.

A hat entered Mike Rossi's pool hall on Monday night, and engaged one of the pool artists to a fistic battle, in which Val Rinaldi emerged victor after eighteen hard-fought rounds. The bat died of poolfever.

Miss Blanche Pinkney left for Calgary Monday night to enter normal school for a term.

Aug. 31.—Bellevue suffered seriously from fire on Tuesday, when some twenty buildings were reduced to ashes, the loss estimated at around $150,000. Practically all the business section, including the Southern and Bellevue hotels, was wiped out.

Sergt. James R. Irwin, of Cowley, and Private Anton Dypolt, of Frank, are reported wounded in action. Later report stated that Dypolt had died of wounds.

Rev. W. T. Young and family this week moved into their new residence at Frank, formerly known as the Calabash Club. George Coupland takes over the house vacated by Mr. Young.

CORRESPONDENCE

The annual meeting of the ratpayers was somewhat disappointing to the expectant audience. After what had been revealed at election committee meetings, and in view of Mayor Knight's defiance of the Communist Party, and his declared determination to smash both the Party and certain councillors, the taxpayers had anticipated that the meeting would clear up the whole affair.

However, nothing much came out of that was not already public knowledge. Perhaps this was due to the manner in which the meeting developed after the Communist speakers and made it clear that, although the election committee's nominees had been withdrawn, the Communist Party would positively refuse to endorse the nominations of officials of the West Canadian Collieries.

The "Citizens" reacted to this statement by charging the United Front committee with a change of front. William Oakes added fuel to the fire when he embarrassed the already perturbed Mr. Leaman by asking the latter if it was his intention to engage in disruptive tactics similar to those employed by Harvey Murphy.

So the meeting progressed, but just as it looked as if no candidates would be named, interested industry stepped into the breach and saved the day by nominating citizens who, so far as is known, are not members of radical organizations subject to "remote" control.

So much for the meeting, which concluded with the curious taxpayers wondering what it was all about.

But although the meeting has not clarified the situation that exists, this article will endeavor to rectify the fault by showing that the opportunistic tactics pursued by Mayor Knight has brought the town into discredit, and that his inconsistent, disruptive and unlawful conduct unfit him for the position of Blairmore's First Citizen.

One of the first attempts of the Mayor to throw a spanner in the wheels of progress was when he resisted (unsuccessfully it is true) the unanimous desire of the councillors that a new auditor should be appointed to replace E. D. Batrurn, whose apparent inefficiency had deluded the council and proved costly to the taxpayers.

Another matter worth recollecting, in view of the Mayor's present resistance to "remote" control, is the visit of Tim Buck in the month of March. On that occasion the Mayor declared a public holiday; presided over a rousing reception at the city hall, and culminated the day's proceedings with a banquet in the Cosmopolitan hotel, at which he, in Bolshevik fashion, vowed his undying faith in, and loyalty to Communist principles. This confession of faith led to Mr. Knight's trip to Calgary, where he was popularized by the Communist Party, and announced on the public platform as the only Red Mayor in Canada. In this capacity, he accepted the plaudits of the audience, and in return told what had been accomplished for the workers of Blairmore through the united efforts of mayor and council. His recent confessions and statements show how faithful he has been to the Party that claims, and not without reason, that it "made him."

It is also well for the taxpayers to be advised of the fact that the Mayor was determined that J. Fitzpatrick should not be discharged for drunkenness and neglect of duty, etc. It was only when the criminal charges of extortion had been laid that the police committee succeeded in dismissing the co-chief.

No less necessary is it for the taxpayers to know that the mysterious destination of the $300.00 cheque has never been officially revealed. Neither has the Mayor satisfactorily explained why he persuaded Secretary Larabellier and Councillor Packer to illegally sign this cheque.

Although it is common knowledge that Harvey Murphy and the Mayor share dual responsibility for $25,000 of the taxpayers' money being spent on the latter's trip to Toronto, how many people are aware that he tried to get another $125.00 for "expenses" after his return? The same two persons would also have wanted the town's funds of some $35.00 for the purpose of sending a cablegram to Hailie Selasie, but for the firm stand of certain councillors.

Another matter that has only recently pierced the veil of secrecy, is that the Mayor holds an option to purchase town property, an act which it is claimed to be strictly illegal.

The above questions are only a few of those that should have been threshed out at the Annual Meeting, but they are sufficient to provide the basis for demanding that a public inquiry be held to prove whether or not Mayor Knight is fit to be called the First Citizen of Blairmore.

THE WELCOME MAN.

There's a man in the world who is never turned down, wherever he chances to stray; he gets the glad hand in the populous town, or out where the farmers make hay; he's greeted with pleasure on deserts of sand, and deep in the aisles of the woods; wherever he goes there's the welcoming hand—he's The Man Who Delivers the Goods. The failures of life sit around and complain; the gods haven't treated them white; they've lost their umbrellas whenever there's rain, and they haven't their lanterns at night. Men tire of the failures who fill with their sighs the air of their own neighborhoods; there's one who is greeted with love-lighted eyes—he's The Man Who Delivers the Goods. One fellow is lazy and watches the clock, and waits for the whistle to blow; and one has a hammer, with which he will knock, and one tells a story of woe; and one, if requested to travel a mile, will measure the perches and rods; but one does his stunt with a whistle or smile—he's The Man Who Delivers the Goods. One man is afraid that he'll labor too hard—the world isn't yearning for such; and one man is always alert, on his guard, lest he put in a minute too much; and one has a grouch or a temper that's bad, and one is a creature of moods; so it's hey for the joyous and rollicking lad—for The One Who Delivers the Goods!—Walt Mason.

ALBERTA DRAWS STUDENTS FROM ALL PARTS OF GLOBE

Registration of students at the University of Alberta has been steadily increasing during the past few years, and the term 1935-36 marks a very great advance over the numbers in former years. Coming from points all over the Dominion of Canada, as well as one or two from other countries, a total of 1,673 students registered at the University. This figure shows an increase of 100 over the 1934-35 term figure, and a relatively greater increase over other years. Out of this total, 270 students live in points outside the Province of Alberta, slightly more than last year, but approximately the same ratio compared to the total registration. Those attending University from homes in Alberta come from 205 cities, towns and villages, and in all 290 points were represented. Excluding the four largest cities in Alberta, 30 per cent of the students were from the smaller centres in Alberta.

The student travelling farthest in search of knowledge was one who came from the Province of Punjab, India, to take his Master of Science Degree. England was represented at the University by three students, and two American citizens, from California and Idaho registered here. Provinces in Canada other than Alberta which sent representatives are: British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Prince Edward Island, ranging from 101 from B.C. to one from P.E.I. Students from Saskatchewan numbered 81, from Manitoba 12, and six came from Ontario. While British Columbia sent more students than Saskatchewan, only 30 communities were represented, compared with 43 Saskatchewan centres. All provinces sent more than in former years, except Ontario, which sent the same number. Six Ontario centres represented were Toronto, Woodstock, Peterboro, Cornwall, Farrow's Pt. and Thamesville, and Manitoba has four places, Winnipeg, Alton, Emerson and Lac du Bonnet.

THE COW

As Conceived by a City Man Who Studies Architecture

The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and a countenance in which there is no guile.

She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filler for hash, and is at last skinned by those she has benefited, as mortals commonly are.

The young cow is called a calf, and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad.

The cow's tail is mounted aft and has a universal joint.

It is used to disturb marauding flies, and a tassel at the end has unique educational value. Persons who milk cows and come often in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a warehouse and has no other function. When this one is filled the cow retires to a quiet place where her ill manners will occasion no comment and devotes herself to belching. The raw materials thus conveyed for the second time in the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach where it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper plate. All her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. The arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites things up and gums down.

A slice of cow is worth eight cents in the cow, fourteen cents in the hands of the packer, and $2.40 in a restaurant that specializes in atmosphere.

P.S.—The male cow is called a bull and is lauded along the Colorado south of the Rio Grande, and shot in the vicinity of the Potomac.—The Cow Bell.

God made the world and all its joys.
He made the men the strongest.
And just to give the women a chance,
He made their tongues the longest.

"Well, Mrs. Joyner," said the minister, "so your poor husband has joined the great majority?"

"Oh, don't say that, sir," said Mrs. Joyner. "I'm sure he was not as bad as all that."

Doctor (to Aberdonian, to whom he had been urgently called): "What on earth have you been doing, Jock? Why, your tongue is absolutely black, man!"

Jock: "I dropped a bottle of whiskey on the newly-tarred road."

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER
FROM EDMONTON
(By T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Alta., Feb. 3.—The provincial legislature opens Thursday this week with the usual ceremonies, modified only by the abandonment of such social functions as are customary, including the reception at Government House following the opening ceremonies. There will be the usual travelling escort for Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor, and the guard of honor in front of the Parliament Buildings, as well as the salute of guns for the king's representative.

Everything in the legislative chamber has been arranged. The crimson carpet has been renovated, the new chair for Mr. Speaker is in place, the lettering on the mace has been changed from "G.R." to "E.R.", and the six smart page boys have their uniforms fitted. The last appointment of members of the seasonal staff was made last week, when Captain H. S. Newby, former member of the "Blues," famous Lifeguards regiment and veteran of South African and Great War experience, was named sergeant-at-arms, with Neil McLean, also a war veteran, as deputy sergeant-at-arms.

Details of the speech from the throne have not been revealed and will not be known until the day it is delivered before a crowded chamber. Tickets of admission for the opening ceremonies are in great demand. Members of the legislature are allowed two each for their friends to admit them to the galleries, but the demand far exceeds the supply. For the opening ceremony, which begins sharp at 3 p.m., the floor of the house will be occupied by members, their wives and prominent invited guests, forming the usual brilliant company.

The premier has indicated that there will be no cutting down of gold braid and military display, and the lieutenant-governor will be accompanied by high ranking officers of the Edmonton garrison and all militia units, as well as by the heads of the R.C.M.P. But all officers will wear mourning bands on their arms in memory of the late monarch. The large portrait which hangs under the public gallery at the right of Mr. Speaker has been draped in black and purple. It is of His late Majesty King George V, painted in his coronation robes, and it faces that of his royal consort Queen Mary, hanging on the opposite wall beneath the members' gallery.

The outstanding event in the session, however, will not be the opening ceremonies, but the introduction of a bill by the government to make it possible to put Social Credit on the statute books without calling a special session of the legislature for the purpose. Premier Aberhart, in announcing this legislation, describes it as "enabling law" and it will give the lieutenant-governor in council the right to enact Social Credit legislation. It is brief and almost without details and will allow the government to use the credit of the province for relief of present financial difficulties. It will be on broad general lines, because the government does not wish to anticipate the work of Major C. H. Douglas, chief reconstruction adviser, when he comes. But there is strong criticism in opposition quarters to the proposals of the government. Leaders of the opposition declare it to be unconstitutional for a government to renege its powers to anyone. D. M. Duggan, Conservative leader in the legislature, objects to any proposed "blanket" authority to make expenditures for Social Credit purposes. "It is almost inconceivable," said Mr. Duggan, "that the premier has any intention of introducing at the coming session of the legislature enabling legislation, void of details, which will clothe the government with power to use the credit of the province to establish a plan of Social Credit. The elected representatives must discharge their responsibilities and must not delegate to anyone their legislative authority. Dictatorship is offensive to Canadian people," said Mr. Duggan. W. E. Howson, K.C., M.L.A., Liberal leader, declared: "If Mr. Aberhart, bringing in legislation that will provide a payment of $25 per month to each adult in Alberta without increasing taxation and without increasing the debt as he has promised, I assuredly will support it. But the details of any such legislation must be of course be thoroughly discussed and analyzed by all the elected representatives of the people."

R. J. Magor, special financial adviser to the provincial government, arrived back in Edmonton Saturday morning. In an interview, he denied a report from Toronto that he had advised defaulting as part of a plan to refund the provincial bonded indebtedness. He contradicted fully the statement that he had or would recommend to the government that it should default on parts of its bonded principal or interest. He at once plunged into preparation of the data for the estimates and the budget to be presented to the legislature. "As far as I know, there are no definite plans for refunding presented between the government of the province and the dominion yet," said Mr. Magor.

Hon. C. E. Manning, minister of trade and industry, announced the appointment of the temporary committee on establishment of retail codes for Alberta. This committee, which will be replaced later by a permanent one, consists of 12 members representing various branches of the retail trade in Edmonton, all Edmontonians, excepting two additional members, bringing the membership to 14, who are A.C. MacKay, of Calgary, who will be chairman, and R. J. Grant, solicitor on the staff of the department of trade and industry, as a special member. The permanent committee will have a wider representation.

A steward stood at the gangway of a big liner, giving instructions to the arriving passengers.

A young woman stepped daintily aboard with a baby in her arms. As she hesitated before the steward, he leaned forward and smiled politely.

"First or second, ma'am?" he asked.

"Oh," she blushed, "neither—I'm only the nurse!"—Answers.

LONDON PEACE TALKS HAVE HAD A GOOD EFFECT

London.—A general bolstering of the shaky peace of Europe was seen in authoritative British quarters as a result of the week's almost unprecedented assemblage of rulers and foreign ministers in London.

Italian tension, these sources said, was the sole exception to the general improvement in international problems reported growing out of the conferences between Europe's statesmen, gathered here for the funeral of King George V.

Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, taxed his energy and diplomatic persuasion to the limit to emerge as the chief conciliator, and the developments, informed observers believed, may have far-reaching effects.

Chief of these was an easing of Franco-German tensions, accomplished by Eden, acting as a go-between for Pierre-Etienne Flandin, the French foreign minister, and Baron Von Konstantin Neurath, envoy of the third reich.

Other conversations, it was learned, had an important bearing on the Austrian situation and on the Balkans.

Little light was shed on these latter talks, except for an indication that restoration of the Hapsburg throne in Austria is not to be expected in the near future.

Observers were interested keenly in the repeated talks which Eden had with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs. The British foreign secretary had several conversations with Litvinoff. The result was not stated, except for a denial that revision of the Anglo-Soviet trade pact is under discussion.

In view of Eden's discussions of the Locarno treaty with both Von Neurath and Flandin, there was widespread speculation as to whether the Franco-Soviet military assistance pact had entered the scope of the Eden-Litvinoff talks.

First, Von Neurath saw Eden in a conference which resulted in the German's reaffirmation of the Locarno mutual security agreements between Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, Italy, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

This was taken to imply that Germany is planning no aggressive move in the demilitarized Rhineland. In turn Great Britain informed Von Neurath no bilateral arrangements had been considered with France which would not be available in the same form for Germany.

Revenues Will Accumulate

Duchy of Cornwall Will Not Go To King's Brother

London.—There is no ground for the current rumors King Edward intends to give the revenues from the Duchy of Cornwall to his brother, the Duke of York, who would be called the Duke of Cornwall and York.

It is learned by the Canadian Press the decision will take considerable time and will depend somewhat upon parliament's action with the civil list. The latter will have to be changed in view of there being a bachelor king.

The Duchy of Cornwall is customarily given the Prince of Wales. But it is pointed out that during the minority of Edward VII, for example, the revenues were accumulated and eventually partly used in the purchase of Sandringham. Thus it is quite possible King Edward VIII will allow the duchy revenues to accumulate again.

Butter Import Control

Urged By Manitoba Dairy Association At Annual Meeting

Winnipeg.—Close control by the Dominion government of the quantities of butter imported from New Zealand and Australia was recommended by the Manitoba Dairy Association in annual convention here. Unregulated admission of butter from the sister dominions would be costly to Canadian producers who required protection, declared the resolution passed by the delegates.

Joseph Burgess, chief of the division of dairy produce, Ottawa, told the delegates several importers of butter in the United Kingdom were favorable to Canadian butter, but the salt content must be reduced to the point where it does not destroy or have a bad effect on flavor.

Will Be Delayed

Commission On Unemployment To Be Set Up Later

Ottawa.—Establishment of the national commission on unemployment and relief will be delayed until parliament has had an opportunity to pass the necessary legislation and appropriations, Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced.

It had been the intention earlier to set up the commission the first of the year, but it was decided to give an opportunity for parliament to deal with the legislation first. This will be introduced as one of the government's first measures to be laid before the house.

KING EDWARD MAY MAKE AN EMPIRE TOUR

London.—The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald predicted that the king would tour the Empire following his coronation next year.

The Herald's story said during King Edward's absence his duties would be performed by a council of state composed of Queen Mary and his three brothers, the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent.

The newspaper's correspondent said it was felt there ought to be some kind of accession ceremony in all the Dominions, with the king present. He said it was possible there would be an actual coronation ceremony in each Dominion capital. Included in the tour would be an imperial durbar at Delhi, India, during the autumn of 1937.

The story said the proposed tour would last nine or ten months and that His Majesty would visit some of the chief colonies as well as the Dominions.

King Edward devoted himself to a series of diplomatic conferences at Buckingham Palace with important European figures.

Prime Minister Baldwin and Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, also conferred with many of the statesmen and diplomats here for the funeral of King George.

Turning aside from the solemn ceremonies in London, and Windsor at which his father was buried, King Edward received Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister; Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar; and other European notables.

It was the first time since the revolution that a Russian government representative had been received at Buckingham Palace.

The king received successively the Earl of Shaftesbury, lord high steward; Prince Ernest Rudolph of Starhemberg, Austrian vice-chancellor; Baron von Neurath, Litvinoff and Nicolas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister and head of the list of entente. His Majesty previously had met President Lebrun of France and Premier Paul van Zeeland of Belgium.

Prime Minister Baldwin conferred with Prince von Starhemberg, Litvinoff and Titulescu and was received by Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia.

Eden had luncheon with Litvinoff preparatory to the Soviet commissar's first audience at Buckingham Palace. The foreign secretary then conferred with Baron von Neurath, Portuguese Foreign Minister Armindo Monteiro, Hungarian Foreign Minister Koloman Kanya and Afghanistan's Foreign Minister Faiz Mohammed Kahn. Kanya later conferred with Baron von Neurath. Eden was received by King Boris of Bulgaria and was host at a dinner to King Carol II. of Roumania. Early in the day he was received in audience by King Edward at Buckingham Palace.

Soviet circles here were jubilant over the events of the day. Anglo-Soviet understanding was seen as strengthened further by a conference between Litvinoff and Alfred Duff Cooper, secretary for war, which was attended also by the Soviet ambassador, Ivan Maisky. Marshal Tucha-tchevski, chief of staff of the Soviet Red army, also conferred with Duff Cooper and Lord Swinton, secretary for air.

Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark and the Crown Princess left for Bath to visit their aged relative, Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George, whose health prevented him attending the funeral.

Snowslide Derails Train

Tokyo.—Twenty-three persons were killed and 63 injured when a snowslide derailed a train east of Yamagata in northern Japan. Three coaches, in which engineers and railway workers were riding, were thrown over a cliff.

U.S. Soldier Bonus

President Roosevelt Has To Find Huge Sum To Meet Outlay

Washington.—President Roosevelt asked the United States congress for a $2,449,174,375 appropriation to meet the soldiers' bonus bill.

Without mentioning the subject of possible tax increase to provide funds, Mr. Roosevelt wrote Speaker Byrns that the veterans' bureau had estimated $2,237,000,000 would be needed for actually cashing the bonus, with the remainder for administrative expenses.

Meanwhile, veterans reported commercial firms were already competing for a share of the money to be distributed. The American Legion warned its members against pledging their bonus in advance, while New York brokers offered $40 immediate cash for each $50 bond. Some business houses, too, were seeking lists of veterans and their addresses.

Washington wondered whether significance could be attached to the absence of any recommendation for new taxes in the president's letter to Speaker Byrns. Mr. Roosevelt said that the administration was making a thorough study of the tax situation created by payment of the bonus and the invalidation of A.A.A. processing taxes.

Will Erect Memorial

London.—In due course parliament will approve erection of a national memorial to George V. This in part will probably consist of an equestrian statue in the west end of London. The statue of Edward VII stands in Waterloo place. The erection of national memorials in variously occupies a long time. Edward's took 10 years.

The Cheltenham flyer, the United Kingdom's fastest regular train, recently completed its 1,000th run at its record speed of 71.3 miles per hour.

Will Return To Geneva

Dr. Walter A. Riddell To Retain Position Held For Several Years

Montreal.—Dr. Walter A. Riddell, Dominion of Canada advisory officer accredited to the League of Nations, has explained satisfactorily to Prime Minister Mackenzie King the incident about oil sanction proposals which created such a stir throughout the country a few weeks ago.

The Gazette states in a despatch from its Ottawa correspondent: "It is officially stated, the despatch continues, the episode which resulted in the government issuing a statement some months ago was due to misunderstanding."

Dr. Riddell would shortly return to Geneva and would continue to occupy the position he had filled for several years, the paper added.

Wheat Conference Called

To Discuss Means Of Promoting Its Sale And Use

Ottawa.—Hon. W. D. Ether, minister of trade and commerce, announced he had invited grain growers, dealers, exporters, the wheat board, cooperative producers and millers to confer Feb. 25 in Winnipeg on means of promoting sale and use of Canadian wheat.

The minister's announcement said the conference was being called in recognition of the desirability of sustained action to promote sale and use of wheat "with no special reference to the present wheat surplus but rather to the general situation which promises to exist for years to come."

British Army Flyers Killed

London.—Three British army flyers were killed when their plane crashed near Port Sudan in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the air ministry announced. Their names were given as Flying Officer Sylvania George Connolly, Lieut. Frank Vaughan and Under-Officer Frank Campbell.

Power Firms Take Action

Federal Government Asked To Disallow Ontario Legislation

Montreal.—The Dominion government has been asked to disallow Ontario legislation, recently proclaimed, which cancelled contracts between the Ontario hydro commission and Quebec hydro-electric companies. It was learned here that the companies were headed by George H. Montgomery, K.C.

George H. Montgomery, K.C., stated an application to that effect has been filed by Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated on behalf of the Beauharnois Power Corporation, one of four companies affected by the cancellation.

The application was filed with the deputy minister of justice, W. Stuart Edwards, at Ottawa, some days ago.

The action was the first step by Beauharnois in fighting the cancellation. It was stated. Recently a bond holder of Ottawa Valley Power Corporation entered action at Toronto seeking to have the act cancelling the contracts declared ultra vires.

Disallowance of provincial legislation may be executed by order-in-council without private or public hearings of the interests involved.

During the year the department of justice reviews the laws enacted by various legislatures but actual disallowance of a provincial statute is rare.

QUEEN MOTHER ISSUES MESSAGE OF GRATITUDE

London.—Queen Mary issued from Buckingham palace a message of gratitude to the people of the United Kingdom and all the empire for their sympathy in connection with the death of King George.

The message was as follows:

I must send to you, the people of this nation and the empire, a message of my deepest gratitude for all the sympathy with which, at this time of sorrow, you have surrounded me.

It is indeed a gratitude so deep that I cannot find words to express it. But the simplest words are the best. I can only say with all my heart that I thank you.

In my own great sorrow I have been held up not only by the strength of your sympathy but also by the knowledge that you shared my grief. For I have been deeply moved by signs so full and touching that the passing of my dear husband brought a real sense of personal sorrow to all his subjects.

In the midst of my grief I rejoice to think that after his reign of 25 years he lived to know he received the reward in overflowing measure of the loyalty and love of his people. Although he will be no longer at my side—and no words can tell how I shall miss him—I trust that with God's help I may still be able to continue some part at least of the service which for 42 years of married life we tried together to give to this great land and empire.

During the coming years, with all the changes which they must bring, you will, I know, let me have a place in your thoughts and prayers. I commend to you my dear son as he enters upon his reign in confident hope that you will give to him the same blessing and loyalty which you have so abundantly to his father.

God bless you, my dear people, for all the wonderful love and sympathy with which you have sustained me.

Extending Boycott

Sanctionist Nations Apply Boycott To Deserter States

Geneva.—Some sanctionist nations are extending their "buy nothing from Italy" boycott to the so-called "deserter states," it has developed. These are Austria, Hungary and Albania.

A session of a committee of experts of the League of Nations on sanctions was informed, for instance, that Great Britain is purchasing materials from Yugoslavia it hitherto bought from Hungary.

The committee decided that most members of the league are applying sanctions against Italy satisfactorily, but it will send out questionnaires to determine Italy's trade trends.

Tribute Of News Vendors

Montreal.—The more poignant because of its being unheralded was the tribute to the late King George on January 25 by Montreal news vendors. They either stayed at home or joined mourning throngs in city churches. News-hungry citizens bought their papers in hotels, restaurants, or newspaper offices.

HAUPTMANN CASE IS ORDERED TO BE RE-OPENED

Trenton, N.J.—Governor Hoffman ordered the New Jersey state police to re-open their investigation of the kidnapping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby.

The governor, who defied threats of impeachment two weeks ago after granting Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted murderer of the child, a 30-day reprieve which saved him from execution the night of January 17, told Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police, by letter, that Hauptmann's fate is "at most the least important feature of this case."

"We can not accept any solution, that, even if, in fact, is less than complete," he wrote, adding there is "abundant evidence that other persons participated in the crime."

In support of his belief the governor attached to the letter a long statement setting forth what he called "incontrovertible" proof that others were involved.

He pointed to Col. Lindbergh's own statements, made before the Bronx county grand jury and to Inspector Harry Walsh of Jersey city, that had seen another man, besides the "John" who collected the $50,000 ransom, at St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, on the night of April 2, 1932, when the money was paid.

He dealt at length also with Dr. John F. Condon's statements and to his recent magazine articles in which the elderly school teacher said he heard the voice of a second man at the other end of the telephone the night of March 11, 1932, when he first made telephonic communication with the kidnapper.

The law enforcement agencies have no reason to regard the case as closed, as Hoffman wrote, and followed this with orders to Schwarzkopf that the state police report "at least once weekly" the progress of their investigation and that of co-ordinating agencies.

Attorney-General Wilentz said he will confer with Schwarzkopf. The attorney-general, in his opening statement to the jury at Flemington, in his summation and all through the trial has contended that Hauptmann alone was involved.

Brilliant War Aviator

Col. Bishop, V.C., Is Appointed To Post At Ottawa

Ottawa.—Canada's brilliant war aviator, Lieut.-Col. William Avery Bishop, V.C., was appointed honorary air vice-marshal of Canada, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, announced recently.

The appointment is purely honorary, Mr. Mackenzie said, and Col. Bishop will have no duties in connection with the Royal Canadian Air Force, except that he may occasionally be asked for advice. It is the first time this rank has been conferred in the Canadian Air Force, although there are corresponding ranks in other branches of the service.

In recognition of his daring and successful exploits over the front lines during the Great War Col. Bishop now becomes the highest ranking officer in the R.C.A.F. Since the war he has held an important executive position with an oil company with headquarters in Montreal.

No less an authority than Capt. Roy Brown, who brought down the famed German airmen, Baron Richthofen, has called Col. Bishop the most spectacular air fighter of the Great War and "the greatest living fighting aviator."

The new air vice-marshal shot down 12 identified German aeroplanes and probably destroyed others which fell behind the German lines and could not be identified. In 10 days he brought down 25 enemy machines. Finally, with orders to return to England for staff work in his pocket, he brought down five machines in a final dash.

Despite his hazardous flights and the injury he inflicted on the German forces Col. Bishop returned to Canada without a wound. His only injury was a minor one and was suffered in a bad landing made by the pilot of a plane in which he was an observer.

Overtures To Germany

Paris.—Premier Sarraut extended an invitation to Germany to return to "the European community" and help restore peace to Europe through the League of Nations. He said it was his ministerial declaration, committing the new government of France to a regime of "conciliation and republican vigilance."

An item in our last week's issue suffered from a wrongly-placed correction line, making it read: Carl Olafson, one of the men convicted and sentenced to a five-year imprisonment. Should have read "six months' imprisonment."

The Alberta legislature opened at Edmonton yesterday, with everything new or spic and span, even to the carpets and mace. Someone said that this latter instrument had been thoroughly disinfected, so as not to endanger the lives of the amateurs.

"Say, Bill, Where Did You Get That Suit?"

"I got it from Upton."

"Is zat so! Say, I have been asking some of your well-dressed young fellows that question, and they all tell me the same."

"Sure, Upton knows how to measure you, and what good is the finest piece of material if the suit does not fit?"
